European Doors Offer Long-Lasting Quality and Eye-Catching Design:

Doors are the first impression of any room. They need to make a personalized impact while also resisting the trials of time and weather. Your door should open and close perfectly after years of hard work, and this is why we depend on the strength and precision of German engineering. With an incomparable attention to detail, German doors are beautiful and practical; always incorporating concealed hinges for a sleek and gorgeous design.

Interior Doors:

The Selection Process

A lot goes into the selection of your home's interior doors. The doors inside of your home or property are going to be used constantly, yet they're often not given proper priority during the planning stages of a new home or renovation.

If you're making the design choices for your new space without the help of a designer, it's important to consider the style of the entire home. With so many options available, it's easy to feel overwhelmed. Consider the style of your property and your own personal sense of style. Are you modern or traditional? Do you prefer Victorian or mid-century modern? Do your research and figure out what styles excite you. Your inspiration is what matters most when it comes to interior design.

The wood's finish and style of door are the two most important elements of the selection process. Consider what materials work with your property and how you feel about the inclusion of glass. Once you've made the basic decisions of style and finish, you'll want to consider the different types of door hardware available. The Door Boutique offers an impressive collection of hardware to choose from, so take your time and make the choices that best represent your style.

Features & Options

Real Wood Veneers – Available with either plain or composed wood patterns. Make sure that your doors look consistently beautiful from top to bottom with our real wood veneer options.

Organic Wood Veneer – Crafted from exotic wood species and always providing rich and unique colors and texture. Organic wood offers true durability, density, and reliability.

UV-Hardening Lacquer – A modern option for completely sealing and finishing your wooden veneer doors. Using acrylic paints, the lacquer creates the perfect style for your modern door without the risk of toxins or being environmentally unsustainable.

Sound Proofing – Privacy is important. That's why all of our doors offer up to 62 dB sound proofing to ensure privacy and long lasting quality. This makes our doors perfect for commercial spaces as well as residential ones.

Reinforcing system - Our unique aluminum reinforcing system allows for taller door confidence.

Finishing & Long Lasting Quality

Without hesitation, the most important quality of your door is its durability. If the quality of any aspect of your door is insufficient, the overall quality will be disrupted and diminished. If the paint, finish or stain of the product is applied in a completely dust free environment, then the adherence to the door is fully amplified. If all stages of the design and production of your door are held to the high standards of German engineering, then you can expect your door to last for decades to come. Your doors are a lifetime investment.

Today, the selection of hardware, finishes and designs are greater than ever! That's why it's so important to consider your options. Find your personal style and choose doors to compliment it. Your style is distinct and your home should be too. That's why The Door Boutique offers the best selection of styles you'll find in Canada.

The European Approach

European design for door trims and frames differ considerably from the North American process. In Europe, there is an emphasis on design right from the beginning of the production process. In Canada and the United States, the trim of a door is usually considered after the purchase, while in Europe it is incorporated directly into the design stages.

Residential Design

Today, the selection of hardware, finishes and designs are greater than ever! That's why it's so important to consider your options. Find your personal style and choose doors to compliment it. Your style is distinct and your home should be too. That's why The Door Boutique offers the best selection of styles you'll find in Canada.
